First published: 31 December 2014
Part of: Guidance for keepers of sheep, goats and pigs and Food and farming

Find out how to register your land and animals, how to get a walking licence and what you can feed pet pigs.

You're considered to be a pig keeper if you keep a pig or 'micropig' as a pet. You have to follow the same regulations as pig farmers.

'Micropigs' are pigs bred to be small so they can be more easily kept as pets.

Poo pots: how do you fill them?

From: Public Health England
First published: 17 September 2014
Part of: Public health

Poo is an important material used to test for diseases.

Thousands of people every year will be asked by their GP or other healthcare professional to give a stool (poo) sample for testing. A lot of people find the idea of this unpleasant and the pot is small so how do you fill it?

A team in Public Health England's (PHE) Primary Care Unit in the South West explored some of the barriers to people returning poo samples and have developed a leaflet which will be launched soon to show how it can be done easily and with minimum unpleasantness.

Drag and drop

Proficient computer users may prefer to drag and drop from their file system onto the browser.

Always use another method alongside drag and drop.

- Drag and drop only works in modern browsers
- Users with dexterity problems such as tremor may have difficulty dragging a file.

Things needed:

- ☐ How to indicate drag&drop-ability
- ☐ Designs for on-drag
- ☐ Research / uptake?

What design patterns can't do

Design patterns
can't be imposed on people

Design patterns
can't replace designers

Design patterns
can't negotiate
with the business

What design patterns can do

Design patterns save time because you don't have to keep answering the same question

Design patterns can help to provide consistency for users

Design patterns help to provide known answers
to common problems

Design patterns help to provide a focus for the community

What would we do differently if we started again?

If you're starting your own
design patterns...

What's happening next?

Caroline is mostly working on creating candidate patterns to go into the Service Manual

There's a big Service Manual project that's just started
